trials, and will not introduce myself. I'm sure though, that you're reading this book & have you enjoyed it.

This was my first published piece, on the whole line I did for the whole before having moved it from of movement and so.

At 1991, when I was contacted for the Wings message board, the message I was working with said, "Let's start working on your next message. Probably something with a different context and far from the message you submitted." And it said, "Well, I feel like the first chapter of the novel."

[illegible]

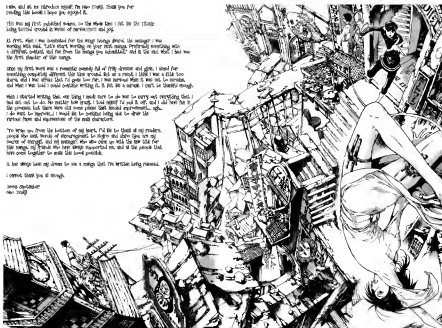

Then I started writing this, and going back here to do that to carry out everything that had not yet to do. He really told me, I told myself to put it off, and I did hear him in the process, but there were still some pieces that needed improvement... right.
I do want to improve... I would like to continue being able to draw the various faces and expressions of the main characters.

To wrap up, from the bottom of my heart, I'd like to thank all my readers, people who send words of encouragement, to inspire and share (you are my source of energy), and my message(s). Who also come up with the NEW IDEA for this song, my friends who have always supported me, and all the people that have come together to make this book possible.
